

Easter in Lithuania

Lithuanian Easter is called Velykos. Lithuanians generally follow the Roman Catholic faith, and Easter is one of the most important days of the year. It also welcomes springtime and colorful eggs, Easter palms, and seasonal foods make the holiday extra special. Some traditions are similar to those in Poland, given that the two countries share a religion as well as history as a result of their shared borders and influences. However, visitors to Lithuania will notice some particular ways in which Easter in this Baltic nation is observed with folk customs and Easter crafts.

Families enjoy the tradition of painting Easter eggs and games are played with the eggs around the springtime holidays.
